

- Inter-relation of science and spirituality, ancient and modern, old and new; enquiry into experiential and experimental knowledge; balance of spiritual and physical lives can be seen clearly only in the vedas.
- They advocate taking the good from every where, including all religious and non-religious books.
- Vedas cannot be compared to holy books, books of other cultures and that they focus on the 'Iccha Shakti', 'Jnaana Shakti' and 'Kriya Shakti' in man and methods to enhance the same for personal and societal benefits.

Vedic messages focus on 'Dharma', 'Artha',
'Kaama' and 'Moksha' - which are the four principles for making life fruitful and purposeful.
